

THE RECRUITING CONVERSATION

The purpose of the Recruiting Conversation is to hire A players. We coaches must constantly be on the lookout for these rare finds - these A players - and once we've identified them we must be prepared to have a Recruiting Conversation that is calibrated to get them on board.

RULES OF ENGAGEMENT

Frequency	Network every month to find talent
Duration	No more than 60 minutes
Preparation	Candidate: None Coach: Social media scan; Questions in your interview protocol; Role; Scope; Details of position; Financial package
Execution	Knowledge: Ensure that your process has a host of different elements to it that go far beyond the reading of a resume and the assessment of sales ability Skill: Design of interactions - both inside and especially OUTSIDE of the interviews themselves - that allow you and your team to observe this candidate's character, habits of mind and behaviors, and how they go above and beyondor don't Discipline: Execute slow yeses by digging deeper and going farther into a candidate's background
Outcome	Determine the level of talent

AVOID THESE TRAPS

- 1. Being too optimistic and letting that show in the conversation
- 2. Failing to see warning signs of lack of fit
- 3. Recruiting for knowledge and network rather than skill and discipline
- 4. Not thinking deeply about the role's outcomes and specific skills and disciplines necessary to achieve those outcomes
- 5. Following company's hiring cycle rather than always being on the lookout for talent
- 6. Not designing in enough touch points in the process

MINDSET

Star: How might I determine if this is an A Player?

KNOWLEDGE

Multi-part process
Performance & feedback

Multiple perspectives

SKILL

Character, not just competency

Situational awareness

Above & beyond

DISCIPLINE

Dig deeper

Fast no's, slow yeses

60 minutes or less

OUTCOME

Determine talent & fit